THE WESTSIDE

That January "Joy Killer,"
Dull Trade, Has Been Driven Away.

After the reaction from Holiday activity we have used a stimulant—on our stock. It has been often proved that the drawing power of Exceptional Value has made business until the Spring demand starts.

We have made prices talk for us as seldom before. Buyers have found out the excellent value obtained during the past week and we want to keep the people coming our way. Business is serious business. We don't believe in trifling with the public, nor in the folly of marking up in order to record a greater apparent reduction.

BROOKLYN'S STRIKE.

City Guarded Like a Military Strike—Strikers Continue Quiet.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Jan. 19.—The leaders of the railroad strike were holding a meeting at Hopkins when the information was received of the calling out of the troops. They decided as a retaliatory step to use every effort to call a general strike of all the trades in the city of Brooklyn. The announcement was received with amazement and indignation at the strikers' headquarters. Said one of the leaders: "I am afraid that this step will lead to violence. It has been hard to restrain them hitherto and I am afraid they will regard this latest move as an indication of a coalition between the authorities and the railroad corporation. It is impossible to say what action the executive board will take in the matter, but they will hold a meeting this morning."

The city is armed like a camp this morning. Soldiers are plentifully scattered along the lines of the trolley roads while at the headquarters and the car houses of the companies a goodly force is stationed. The strikers seem to be overawed by the appearance of the militia and content themselves with jeers or scoffs at both the non-union men and the militia. A snowfall during the night of two inches delayed the starting of the cars this morning but when sent out the strikers showed no disposition to interfere and there was an entire absence of rioting which was so rampant yesterday.

As morning wore on the strikers grew bolder and there were several attacks made on non-union men. Some cars were stoned. The first demonstration of violence toward soldiers was at the Halsey street depot, where Corporal Cherry was knocked down. No serious outbreak has occurred and the cars are running frequently.

DR. PARKHURST'S OPINION

He Intimates That Politics Still Rule in New York State and City Affairs.

Lexow Committee Relaxed After Defeating the Democrats in November.

New York, Jan. 19.—The Rev. Dr. Parkhurst was seen last night with regard to the report made by the Lexow committee to the senate and the bills on the subject. He said he was very much interested in the matter, and then made the following statement:

"The details of the bill are interesting, but the things to be considered at the moment are its structural outlines, and the animating spirit in these respects is substantially what the public had been led to expect. There are only three features of that that I can just now mention. The first of these I can hardly approve, namely, the enlargement of what it is proposed to call the chief of police, a far better term than superintendent by which to designate the head of the force. The second feature is that of partizanship, which I earnestly repeat as being counter to the wish and demand of the people as calculated to make partizanship a mandatory element of our city politics at the very time when the popular desire is to utterly exterminate partizanship from municipal administration, and furthermore designed to furnish a field for the organization of political deals and the play of political machinations. The third feature is the policy it proposes for the reorganization of the police force. Since the investigation of the 6th of November the investigating committee has shown singular and suspicious disinclination to handle matters with unflinching thoroughness. Therefore it is not strange that the same quality of irresolution creeps into its proposed policy of reorganization. The committee in the eighth article of its summary recommends a "radical reorganization," that is, a reorganization that goes to the roots. The roots, however, it appears, they do not propose to touch. They recommend only that it be treated to a little arboriculture and pruning."

London, Ont., Jan. 19.—The Lehigh Grand Trunk railway express ran into a horse and cutter which was being driven by R. Haggart at the Hyde Park crossing of the G. T. R. yesterday. The driver and horse were mangled in a frightful way and the cutter was smashed into kindling wood.

Toronto, Jan. 19.—Mrs. Joseph Geroux, a married woman who has been living alone for the past few weeks on Rochester street, was found sitting in her chair yesterday partially burned and dead. Fire broke out in her house and she was found by the firemen.

The grand council, P. P. A., will convene here next Tuesday. At a private meeting of the order in St. Thomas, Ont., last night, Rev. J. C. Madill of Sarnia announced that he would retire from the presidency.

Kingston, Ont., Jan. 19.—Geo. Smith, a jewelry traveller, just returned from the Pacific Coast says it will be a bad thing if the government reduces the number of police as suggested. He claims there are one thousand miles of the C. P. R. where the train could be held up at any time by three or four highwaymen. The mounted police are the only protection to the road and it would be an easy matter for highwaymen to hold up trains and skip over the border. Once they got into Idaho they could never be captured.

Winnipeg, Man., Jan. 19.—An agitation has been started here against the increase in the price of bread. For a long time past the price has been five cents per loaf and twenty loaves for a dollar. It is now eighteen loaves for a dollar or ten cents for a single loaf. The poorer people complain bitterly as they suffer most by the increased price.

THE HAWAIIAN REVOLUTION

Report That the Arms Were Taken From Vancouver by the Schooner Norma.

Official Reports Received at Washington Regarding the Recent Uprising.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—Hawaiian Minister Thurston received a dispatch from President Dole this morning saying:

"Rebellion has broken out. The leaders and remaining followers are fugitives in the mountains."

Thurston said no local revolution in Hawaii would be any more effective than this one had been. There is hardly a chance that the present government can be overthrown through internal influence. The government is stronger than any force that could be brought against it by the enemy. As to Wilcox, Thurston said he was thoroughly an annexationist until annexation failed, and then because he was not given an office under the republic he became a royalist, and has since been an active enemy of the government.

"Sam Nowlein, the other leader of the recent attempt," said Thurston, "is a saloon keeper and intense royalist." Thurston to-day received a dispatch from the Hawaiian consul in San Francisco saying Hatch, the Hawaiian minister for foreign affairs, would sail for Honolulu on the Australia on Monday.

The following is the full text of Minister Willis' dispatch to Secretary Gresham:

"Honolulu, Jan. 11.—At Waikiki beach, five miles from the executive building, on the night of January 6th, an uprising of Hawaiians is reported. They number several hundred, and are well supplied with arms and ammunition, and are commanded by Captan Nowlein and R. Wilcox. Hon. C. L. Carter, late commissioner, was killed on the first night. There has been desultory fighting ever since without further loss of life or property to the government. Three royalists were killed and fifty prisoners were taken. Over fifty non-combatants, mostly whites, were arrested, including the ex-attorney-general and many prominent persons. Martial law was declared on January 7th. No vessels were allowed to leave. The other islands are reported quiet. The crisis is thought to be over, but the excitement is intense. President Dole expressed to me gratification that no national ship has been in port during this disturbance. The arms are reported to have been brought from Vancouver by the Norma. (Signed) Willis."

The warship Philadelphia has been ordered to proceed to Honolulu.

In the senate this morning Frye offered a resolution expressing great regret at the attempt to restore the deposed Hawaiian queen; sympathy with the republic in her effort to suppress the rebellion, and calling on President Cleveland to order a warship to Hawaiian waters at once to protect the lives and property of Americans. The part of the resolution about ordering a warship was objected to by Gray. Frye thereupon withdrew that part. George then objected to the consideration of the whole resolution and it went over. Frye remarked that God might forgive a man who made such an objection, but that the American people never would. George retorted that he was not responsible for Frye's conduct.

San Francisco, an. 19.—"It was with extreme regret that I heard of the foolhardy uprising against the government of Hawaii," said W. F. Hatch, minister of foreign affairs for the republic, who is now in San Francisco on business connected with the proposed Hawaiian cable. "It has resulted in the loss of one or two valuable lives, and that fact alone makes it lamentable. I have not yet had time to read the full accounts of what transpired. Mr. Carter's life was thrown away. He was a promising young man. I am glad that no American man of war has been at the islands for six months. It has given an opportunity to the executive department of the government to demonstrate to the world that it is the master of the siuation and does not depend on any outside aid. I am glad also that it will be eight or ten days before any foreign ship can arrive there, as in that time the government will have had full opportunity to deal with the situation without foreign interference."

THE WRECKED IVANHOE.

Bark Robert Sudden Accompanied Her Through the Straits.

San Francisco, Jan. 19.—A private letter was received here yesterday from Captain Birkholm of the barkentine Robert Sudden, greatly to the relief of the owners of that vessel. The Sudden crossed out from Puget Sound in company with the ill-fated Ivanhoe and nothing was heard of her until yesterday. Captain Birkholm says he was in company with the Ivanhoe off Flattery on September 27th and 28th. On the latter date a heavy southeast gale sprang up which increased in violence until it was blowing a hurricane. The storm was accompanied by rain and hail and the weather was so thick that nothing could be seen further than a few hundred feet away. For four hours the gale continued and when the weather cleared there was nothing to be seen of the Ivanhoe. It is supposed that it was in this blow that she went to the bottom with all hands on board.

SHORT LIVED REVOLUTION

Hawaiian Royalists Cause Some Fighting in Which Several Are Killed.

Charles Carter a Prominent Young Citizen and Politician One of the Victims.

San Francisco, Jan. 18.—Honolulu, Jan. 11.—(Correspondence United Press by steamer Alameda.)—On the fifth what seemed an attempt to arm the natives occurred at Kakaako beyond the marine railway and to land rifles from the steamer Waimanala. It was frustrated by the vigilance of the police. A second attempt was successful. On the evening of Sunday the 6th, as many as 600 rifles were landed between Waikiki and Diamond Head, nearly six miles from town. Some 500 natives were there and received arms and ammunition. The Waimanala, Captain Davis, landed the rifles in whale boats. He brought them from beyond Waialae, where they had been landed by a schooner from Victoria, if present information is correct. The natives were under command of Robert Wilcox and Sam Knowlen. They captured during the day and detained eight or ten white persons of both sexes found taking a Sunday afternoon stroll beyond Diamond Head. The wire to the telephone outlook on the Head was cut, and no information could reach the city. Their headquarters were at Antone Rosa's house on the beach near Waialae. It was the intention to rush in early and surprise the city when the people were at church.

The authorities received information towards night that arms were being landed at Diamond Head at the house of a half white royalist leader named Henry Bertelmann. This house is beyond Campbell's mansion which is at the end of the park. It is well under the base of the head. A strong squad of the police were immediately sent out on horses to search Bertelmann's house, the citizens' guard were put on the alert and the artillery companies summoned.

Captain Parker, with his police, reached Bertelmann's house after dark. Captain Brown read the warrant. He found Bertelmann on his verandah with a stranger, and while the police were lined up on the lawn below the house Brown proceeded to read his warrant to him. While reading the police were fired upon from the beach. The rebels were collected there in force on their way to surprise the city. At that moment there arrived from houses in the park, three leading young men—J. B. Castle, collector-general; Charles L. Carter, and his law partner, Alfred Carter. They came to assist Brown and his police. Carter observed that the firing proceeded from a canoe shed on the beach. He sung out to the police to come on and with them made a rush on the shed. John Lane, a half white, fired on him with a pistol at close quarters. Carter received two shots, one of which went downward from the fifth rib. He fell, calling out that it was not serious, but exclaimed that he was hit. At the same time Bertelmann fired with a carbine from the verandah and shot down Lieut. Hole of the police, who is dangerously wounded. The enemy were driven from the shed by the resolute attack, but ran inland to the Algaroba bush. From there they kept up a fire upon the house to which the wounded men had been carried, together with Lane and two other prisoners. Alfred Carter went for a doctor, leaving Charles in care of Castle. Brown and Parker made an effort to drive away the enemy but found the fire overpowering. They ran to their horses and rushed off to telephone for troops.

Brown got to the Nolter a mile away and called for help. Parker kept meeting the enemy everywhere and was driven into the bush with one man in his company, and did not reach town until daylight. Meantime Alfred Carter returned to Bertelmann's with Dr. Walters, but was unable to pass the enemy. Castle and one policeman cared for the wounded, held the prisoners and compelled Bertelmann to induce the firing on the house to cease, those outside supposing a large force to be in the house. Getting Brown's telephone before 8, the government at once hurried out the city soldiers from the executive buildings under Lieut. King, and the whole force of volunteers was called out and started for the scene. The citizens' guard were put on their posts in squads on the street corners. Before also the city was in a full state of defence. King and his men were on the ground before 9 o'clock. The enemy retired before them, keeping up a galling fire. A Carter and Dr. Walters joined King and entered the house crawling on their hands and knees. They found Charles in great agony. After a time he was removed to his own house. Hole was sent to the hospital, and Bertelmann, Lane and the two native prisoners were sent to the station house.

The enemy had by this time retreated up the heights at the base of the head. These woods overlooked the house and the end of the park. Their number and position made the house untenable. King retired half a mile back to the Sans Souci hotel and reported the situation by telphone. A small force was sent the same night on the Waialae road two miles inland of the park. The enemy was found also on that road. Early in the morning Lieut. Coyne was sent out with 25 more soldiers, and King formed a line from the beach at Sans Souci to near the west slope of the head, to keep the rebels advancing. The latter left the shore and ascended to the rim of the crater, whence they could fire to great advantage upon the soldiers. A rifled gun was sent to Coyne and shells dropped with great accuracy upon the summit. This frightened the rebels away. One shell burst in a group exactly on the highest peak and killed several men. The number of rebels on the crater was estimated at over one hundred.

At an early hour Captain Murray, with twenty-five specials and ten mounted policemen, was sent out on the Waialae road. Nearing the ridge back of Diamond head a force of rebels opened fire on them with a field piece. That they had one was a surprise. Bob Wilcox handled the gun. He was in a natural fortification, a small volcanic cone called Mauumae. None were hit. Murray fell back and established a camp. Captain Zeigler was then sent out with a force of volunteers and sharpshooters and a rifled gun. He arrived at 3 p.m., and partly by shelling and partly by directing the attack of the men, Wilcox was forced to abandon his position, carrying off his gun, which has not yet been heard from. A large number of natives were in the cantana chapparel, both above and below the road. The firing was sharp on both sides for several hours. The natives did not know how to fire their guns. Several of them were killed and wounded.

Carter died at 5 a. m. His death created a profound sensation. He was a young man of fine presence, unusual ability, engaging manners and fine character. He was one of the five commissioners who negotiated the treaty of annexation with President Harrison in 1893. He was a leading member of the convention which framed the new constitution last year, and was expected to be a leader in the coming session of the legislature, although barely thirty years of age. Chas. Lunt Carter was the eldest son of the late Hawaiian minister at Washington, Henry P. Carter, and nephew of Chief Justice Judd. He leaves a widow and two children. He was buried the same day from his mother's house in the city.

Judge Widemann's son Carl was with the rebels; also young Greig and some others who, it is claimed, ought to know better. Martial law was declared early on Monday morning. About sixty arrests of suspected persons have been made, including many leading royalists. C. B. Wilson and Sam Parker are not suspected of complicity. Rickard got the guns sent here and will fare hard, as well as Davis, who landed them. Both the Ashfords are in jail, with Peterson, Creighton and Festa, leading witnesses of Blount, so that with suspects and prisoners both station houses and prison are getting crowded.

The ladies have been very busy in providing food and coffee, as well as blankets, to all in need and within reach. The great number of foot patrols has been constantly supplied, many of them being leading citizens. There is something of a mystery as to where the queen is. I am reliably informed that the government have her in custody in a place known to a few persons only. This is party to protect her from the incensed people and also to separate her from her supporters. A most serious problem is what disposition to make of her, as she will continue to be a source of disaffection and disturbance.

Honolulu, Jan. 12.—(Noon)—The mail being twenty-four hours behind time enables us to announce that the insurrection has been crushed and the rebels have been entirely dispersed. The majority of the men have come in from the front and gone to seek needed rest in their homes. Military operations are probably at an end. The guarding of the city may continue some days longer, until the malcontents get settled down. Steamers will now proceed on their usual routes.

PAUL JONES.

The Identity of the Globe Trotter Discovered—A Harvard Graduate.

Seattle, Jan. 18.—The identity of Mr. Paul Jones, the around-the-world tramp, who is making money instead of spending it in travelling, was discovered yesterday in this city. His real name is L. C. Pfeiffer and he graduated from Harvard College with the class of 1888. He is a native of Portsmouth, N. H., and his parents being poor, he worked his way through college, and he was considered by all his class mates as being eccentric although bright. He rowed No. 6 in the Harvard 'varsity crew in 1887-88, and was considered the most powerful oar in the crew. In 1889 he was elected captain of the crew but did not row in the race. In both the races he rowed his crew was beaten.

Yesterday Jones was employed by a well known dry goods house, where, dressed in his paper suit, he sold cakes of soap with his autograph for seven cents, and did a land office business. He paraded up and down in the interior of the store, and would say to the curious onlookers: "Buy a cake of soap and a picture; I only come around once in a hundred years." Crowds flocked around the store during the entire time he was there, making it almost impossible to get by at times. Most of his patrons were ladies who thought him "just too handsome to live."

SLANG SAYINGS IN HIGH PLACES.

Popular Phrases Introduced in Oratorical Effusions.

It is astonishing how a popular phrase, like a popular tune, will, even against the better judgment of the wisest men, run in the heads of the latter, and occasionally creep out even on grave and momentous occasions. Mr. Gladstone, the soberest as well as the most eloquent of speakers, once—and only once—committed himself in this way. Speaking at Edinburgh at a great meeting, he said, "The cry of the other party, seems to be, to use a popular phrase, 'not too much suffrage, but just suffrage enough.'" Not many weeks before the late Lord Chief Justice ceased to sit in the law courts, Mr. Crump, Q. C., whilst pleading before him, happened to say: "Would your lordship be surprised to find" and a great laugh went up, the learned judge joining in this, for the phrase used by him in the cross-examination of the Tichborne claimant always stuck to him. During the reign of another popular saying, Colonel Sibthorpe in the House of Commons, said, regarding a cabinet minister who had been laid up with the gout, "I am glad to see that the right hon. member is in his right place again, and I am inclined to ask him 'How's your poor feet?'" This is a very fine and large bill," said Mr. Arthur Balfour in the House on one occasion; and Sir William Harcourt once congratulated the Irish members that they were "all on the job." Mr. Goschen on another occasion, said that the demand of the opposition for a dissolution was a sort of "Tommy, make room for your uncle" cry.—Cassell's Saturday Journal.

NEWFOUNDLAND CRISIS.

Statement of the Condition of the Union Bank.

St. John's, Nfld., Jan. 18.—A full statement of the condition of the suspended Union bank was presented at the meeting of the shareholders of the bank last evening. The statement shows the liabilities of the bank to be $3,403,906; assets $3,174,778, leaving a deficit of $229,128. This will necessitate a call on two-thirds of the reserve liability fund of the shareholders, but as many of these will be unable to respond the result of the call will probably be insufficient to meet the deficit, therefore the bank must necessarily become insolvent. When the liquidation is finally accomplished it is not expected that more than 90 cents on the dollar will be realized for all creditors.

The confederation of Newfoundland with Canada is being discussed by the government. It is expected that a proposition for the appointment of a delegate to proceed to Canada to seek terms will be placed before the legislature next week.

The leaders of last week's labor riot in this city were sentenced to-day three to six months' imprisonment each with hard labor, and the remaining two to pay a fine of $20 or be imprisoned for two months.

NO MORE WARS.

Proposition to Settle all Disputes by Arbitration.

Washington, Jan. 18.—William Rancall Cremer, Liberal member of parliament and editor of the Agitator, saw the President this afternoon by appointment and presented the memorial signed by 354 members of parliament, representing all shades of political opinion in Great Britain, proposing that all differences between that country and the U. S. which cannot be settled by the usual diplomatic methods should be submitted to arbitration. Mr. Cremer said that the British Government was favorable to that proposition. The memorial grew out of the sentiment which has been voiced by legislators of both countries affirming in a general way the principle of arbitration, and is a direct result of Senator Allison's resolution introduced in the last session of congress providing for an arbitration treaty between English-speaking nations to last for a term of twenty years. It is claimed that the example set by Great Britain and the United States would speedily be followed by other nations, and that in this way universal peace, and in particular, the stability of Europe might be assured.

CLAIM SNOHOMISH.

Heirs of an old Pre-Emptor Claim the Whole Townsite.

Seattle, Jan. 18.—The Haskell heirs, five in number, have begun suit to recover the entire townsite of Snohomish, valued at nearly one million dollars. Roy Haskell, a pioneer of Puget Sound, came from Iowa in 1870 and located on Donation Claim, where the city of Snohomish now stands. His wife died in 1878, but previous to her death, Haskell sold the property without her consent. E. C. Clay, who bought most of the Haskell estate, laid it out in town lots, dedicating streets, thoroughfares and alleys for the use of the public. Under the laws and by decisions of the supreme court of this state, Haskell's children can recover, and the suit excites considerable interest. The heirs will immediately begin two more suits to obtain possession.

ORLEANS'S MANIFESTO.

Perier's Resignation is an Indictment of the Present Constitution.

Versailles, Jan. 18.—The Duke of Orleans, pretender to the throne of France, issued a manifesto yesterday, addressed to Senator Buffet. It dwells upon the dangers of the present crisis, claiming the president's letter of resignation is an indictment of the present constitution. The republic of France, the duke claims, can never be other than a provisional regime. He adds: "The hour is near at hand when the country will wish to return to the form of government which was the glory of its past and is the guarantee of its future." Continuing the manifesto says: "Providence in making me represent the monarcy, imposes upon me a heavy heritage, but the day my country calls me I shall endeavor to fulfill my whole task. My life and blood will belong to France; to that France which my ancestors made great and respected. That will be the work of to-morrow. The task of to-day will be to overcome immediate dangers." The manifesto concludes with an appeal to friends of the monarchy to vote for the candidate best able to maintain international order, social peace and France's honor abroad.

Hood's Cured After Others Failed

Scrofula in the Neck—Bunches All Gone Now.

Sangerville, Maine.

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:
"Gentlemen:—I feel that I cannot say enough in favor of Hood's Sarsaparilla. For five years I have been troubled with scrofula in my neck and throat. Several kinds of medicines which I tried did not do me any good, and when I commenced to take Hood's Sarsaparilla there were large bunches on my neck so sore that I could not bear the slightest touch. When I had taken one bottle of this medicine, the soreness had gone, and before I had finished the second the bunches had entirely disappeared." BLANCHE ATWOOD, Sangerville, Maine.

CHAMPION JAS. J. CORBETT

AN INTERESTING INTERVIEW WITH THE GREAT PUGILIST.

What He Says of His Coming Fight With Fitzsimmons.

From the St. Louis, Mo., Chronicle.

James J. Corbett's history as a ring hero will reach the end of the chapter when his battle with Bob Fitzsimmons is won and lost, for, as the world knows, Corbett is matched to fight Fitzsimmons before the Florida Athletic club within a year, for $61,000, the largest amount in stake and purse ever hung up since pugilism was promulgated in England 170 years ago. Corbett, attired in a frock coat of the period, plug hat, and shod in patent leathers, sat in his apartments in the Southern hotel at St. Louis, the other day, and delivered himself of a few opinions regarding his coming fight with Bob Fitzsimmons.

"I am fully aware that Fitzsimmons will give me the most scientific battle of my career," said the champion to a Chronicle man. "He is a hard hitter and cool headed. I saw him fight Jack Dempsey and posted myself on his style. He is my equal almost in height and reach, though after carefully comparing his method of boxing with mine, I can't see where he has any advantage over me, as I am younger, stronger and shifter, hit oftener and mix my blows more. Fitzsimmons is very foxy—he was cute enough to feign grogginess in several of his battles, thus throwing his opponents off their guard. He can't fool me by working the groggy dodge. I will take no chances with him. I think I can whip him within 15 rounds. After my fight with Fitzsimmons I will devote my entire attention to my theatrical enterprises and retire permanently from the prize ring."

Corbett is now the picture of health, weighing 214 pounds. "I am bigger, better and stronger than ever before," replied the champion when asked about his health. "The rheumatic complaint that held me captive off and on some time ago has left me completely and I know I am cured permanently. I contracted rheumatism before training for my fight with Peter Jackson," continued Corbett. 'How I got it or where I got it is a mystery to me, but that I had it is a fact that I am not likely to forget very soon. I suffered a good deal with rheumatism after that fight. Some days my arms, wrists and fingers would be so stiff and so swollen that I could not use them at all. My legs also pained me, but to a less degree. Then, again, all this would leave without any apparent reason, and I would not be troubled again for weeks. Of course I doctored for my complaint continuously, but the attacks seemed to come every few weeks just the same. A short time after my fight with Jackson I went east and met and defeated Dominick McCaffrey, though I was handicapped by rheumatism in my left leg in my encounter with McCaffrey. These periodical attacks of rheumatism affected me until a few weeks before I began training for my fight with Mitchell. One day I sat in the Coleman house, New York, reading a newspaper. My eye chanced to cross an advertisement of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I had never heard of them before, and as an experiment purchased a box. I consumed two boxes and was pleased with the results, for the pains began to leave my arms and legs. After taking four boxes according to directions, I found myself greatly improved. The improvement is permanent, I am sure, for I have not been troubled with rheumatism since. Before using the pills the rheumatic attacks returned every month or so, especially if I caught cold. When I trained for my fight with Mitchell in Florida I suffered from malaria and used the pills as a tonic with splendid results. I found that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were efficacious in building up the system after a malarial attack."

The above I attest as entirely correct.

PROVINCIAL LEGISLATURE.

Report of the Select Committee on Mr. Adam's Refusal to Give Sworn Testimony.

House Passes a Motion Prohibiting Employment of Aliens on Public Works.

THIRTY-FIFTH DAY.

Friday, Jan. 18.

The speaker took the chair at two o'clock.

Prayers by Ven. Archdeacon Scriven.

Mr. Williams presented the second report from the select committee re parliament buildings, as follows:

"Mr. Frederick Adams, the contractor for the new parliament buildings, appeared before your committee, in pursuance of summons issued by the chairman of your committee, requiring his attendance for the purpose of giving evidence before your committee.

"Upon being requested to be sworn he (Adams) refused, alleging your committee had not the power to administer an oath to a witness, nor to compel a witness to take the oath, and that if he consented other witnesses whom he desired to have examined before your committee might refuse the same. He intimated his willingness to give his evidence under oath provided others can be compelled to do so.

"Your committee therefore recommend that your honorable body do instruct the speaker to issue his subpoena, or warrant, compelling the aforesaid Frederick Adamas to attend the said committee and give his evidence under oath."

The speaker ruled that the chairman of a select committee had the power to require a witness to give evidence under oath.

Mr. Hunter—What if the witness should refuse to be sworn?

The Speaker—He would be summoned to the bar of the house and committed to the common jail, as had been done with the Messrs. Kennedy of the Columbian.

Hon. Mr. Martin—What will be done if the report is adopted?

The Speaker—I will issue a subpoena or a warrant.

Hon. Mr. Martin—He does not refuse to give evidence, but does not wish to be sworn unless all the witnesses are sworn.

The Speaker—He is no different from any other man, and must comply with the rules of the house. He, however, would only issue a subpoena, and thus save time. If Mr. Adams did not appear and be sworn after that a warrant would be issued for him.

The report was received and adopted.

Mr. Helmcken introduced a bill respecting landlord and tenant. Read a first time.

Mr. Braden moved that whereas by the report of a committee adopted along with a minority report on the 27th of April, 1888, it was respectfully recommended to the government to take into their earnest consideration the advisability of issuing a crown grant of the land comprised in pre-emption 1003 to Mr. Samuel Greer, or to take such other steps as may be proper to secure Mr. Greer's title to the land; and whereas the government afterwards granted a petition of right in respect of the said claim, but the matter appears to be of such a nature that the rights of the claimant cannot be enforced upon petition of right, and it also appears that the land in question has been granted by the government to other parties; be it therefore resolved, that in the opinion of this house the case is one for the government to take into their consideration.

Mr. Semlin contended that the motion was out of order, the house not having the power to demand that the government remunerate a man.

Mr. Helmcken thought that it would not be advisable for the house to interfere with a case now before the courts.

Mr. Speaker reserved his decision on the point of order.

Later in the afternoon the speaker ruled that the motion was in order.

Hon. Mr. Davie went through the Greer case, which has been debated at every session of the house for many years. In his opinion Greer had a claim to the land, and he had always been of that opinion since Greer had been acquited on the charge of forgery in connection with the deeds for the land. He would like to see the matter settled by Greer being given another homestead. He thought the claim was better than some that had been settled a few years ago.

Mr. Kitchen contended that there was evidence to disprove what the attorney-general had said. On his motion the debate was adjourned.

Mr. Sword introduced a bill to amend the election regulation act. Read a first time.

Mr. Helmcken presented a petition from the Victoria and Vancouver Island Women's Council asking that the school act may be so amended that women may act as school trustees.

Mr. Braden moved that in the opinion of this house the government of this province should not, directly or indirectly, employ or pay for any alien labor on government works, and that a clause to this effect should be inserted in all government contracts, and that any contractor employing alien labor shall not have any claim for same against the government.

Hon. Mr. Turner would like to have a definition of the word alien. Would it include workmen from the other provinces or Great Britain? (Laughter.)

Mr. Braden—As I understand it, a British subject cannot be an alien in Canada.

Mr. Booth did not think the resolution should pass, as it goes too far.

Mr. Bryden thought the house would be acting very inconsistently if they passed the motion. A sum of money had been voted for an office in London. That was done, he supposed, to induce immigration, and it would be wrong to induce immigration from European countries and then refuse those immigrants work when they arrived here.

Dr. Walkem did not think it would be to the credit of the province if the motion was passed, it being too narrow a view, especially in a country where immigrants were so badly needed.

Hon. Col. Baker said the resolution would prevent the Bella Coola colonists from building the government roads through their colonies. There might be a rider added stating that men who had declared their intention to become British subjects might be employed.

Mr. Rogers would go further than was proposed in the resolution and say that an alien should not receive any government money. It was very easy for a man to become a British subject, and besides there were many British subjects out of employment.

Mr. Irving supported the resolution. It did not cost a man anything to become a British subject. All he had to do was to swear allegiance to the crown.

Hon. Mr. Pooley opposed the resolution. He thought it would meet all the requirements if it required that a foreigner should have resided in the province for twelve months and declared his intention of becoming a British subject.

Hon. Mr. Martin moved an amendment in the direction proposed by Mr. Pooley.

Mr. Sword considered a resolution of the kind all right in the depressed times, but in the better times the government should not be hampered in getting the work done at the most reasonable time. All agreed that a large Chinese population was not desirable, but it was not desirable to shut out men of our own race, who although not born British subjects make good citizens.

The resolution as amended was adopted.

Mr. Williams moved that the standing rules and orders of the house be suspended in regard to bill (No. 25) intituled an act respecting the Vancouver incorporation act and amending acts, in so far as regards any irregularity in the manner in which the bill was brought into the house, and that the bill as reported from the private bills committee shall be held to be properly before the house.

This was done to prevent the bill from being thrown out, the speaker having intimated that should any objection be taken to the bill he would have to rule it out, as it had been irregularly introduced.

The speaker reserved his decision as to whether the motion was in order.

Mr. Kennedy asked the attorney-general: Have section 158 of the Municipal act and section 210 of the Municipal act amendment act, 1892, been declared unconstitutional by some of the judges? If so, does the government intend to bring in any measure this session dealing with clubs and club licenses?

Hon. Mr. Davie—I am not aware that it has been declared unconstitutional, nor do I think it is unconstitutional.

Mr. Williams asked the attorney-general: Is it the intention of the government to comply with the resolution of this house that the government shall introduce legislation for the purpose of enforcing the residence of a supreme court judge at Vancouver? If so, when will such legislation be introduced?

Hon. Mr. Davie—The bill to amend the supreme court act, of which notice has been given, is for the purpose of complying with the resolution.

The bill to incorporate cheese and butter factories was finally passed.

The bill to prevent fraud in the supply of milk to cheese and butter factories was considered in committee, Mr. Irving in the chair. A clause was inserted providing for the inspection of dairies, and the bill was reported complete.

The bill to amend the graveyard act was read a second time.

Hon. Col. Baker moved the second reading of a bill to allow Charles F. Law to prospect in an old river bed in Cariboo.

Read a second time.

The Burrard Inlet Railway and Ferry bill was committed with Mr. McGregor in the chair. A clause was inserted in the bill preventing the employment of Chinese and Japanese on the work to be undertaken by the company and it was reported complete.

Mr. McGregor moved the second reading of the Nanaimo city official map act. At present there were two official maps of the city, causing much trouble. The corporation had had a new survey made, and the object of the bill was to make the map official.

Mr. Bryden thought the bill if passed would cause much litigation.

Motion agreed to.

The Nanaimo water works company's bill was finally passed.

The house went into committee on the Victoria Hydraulic mining company's bill.

Mr. Kidd introduced an amendment to prevent the employment of Chinese and Japanese by the company.

The chairman ruled the amendment out of order, notice not having been given of it as required respecting amendments to private bills.

The bill was reported complete with amendments.

Mr. Rithet asked the use of the legislative assembly room for Monday morning at 10 o'clock, a number of loggers and lumbermen wishing to meet as many members of the house as possible in regard to the operation of the act respecting official scalers of logs.

Hon. Mr. Davie announced that night sessions would commence on Tuesday evening.

The house adjourned at 6 o'clock until Monday.

NOTICES OF MOTION.

Mr. Forster—For a return showing (a) the amount of fines collected by justices of the peace and paid into the treasury in the two years ending 30th June, 1894; (b) a list of the fines so collected and paid by each justice of the peace, with the names of the parties fined and the dates and offences.

Hon. Mr. Baker—To amend section 26 of the public school act, 1891, by striking out the word "male" in the first line.

Mr. Kitchen—For a return showing the expenditures by the board of horticulture and the inspectors of fruit pests since 30th June, 1894.

QUESTIONS TO BE PUT.

Mr. Williams—Is it the intention of the government to introduce legislation at the present session relating to the transfer of real estate and to the registration of titles to land?

Japan's Population.

In the Japan Official Gazette of a recent date are given the results of the census taken in 1893. The number of families is stated as 7,859,218, the total population 41,386,265. The sexes are—20,905,259 males to 20,480,906 females. The increase of population on 1892 was 290,325. The births in 1893 were 1,177,423, and the deaths 937,177; marriages totalled 357,913 and divorces 116,639. Emigrants are stated at 35,550, and prisoners at 109,349. Among the prefectures Niigata heads the list with a population of 1,764,608; Hyogo comes second with 1,569,953; Aichi third with 1,509,602; Tokyo fourth with 1,409,759; Hiroshima fifth with 1,363,861; Fukuoka sixth with 1,264,776; Osaka seventh with 1,232,449 and Chiba eighth with 1,222,393. Several other kens exceed the one million total; it will suffice to name them without indicating their exact order or number: Saitama, Ibaraki, Shizuoka, Nagano, Okayama, Kumamoto and Kagoshima.

"The vague promise of economy is worthless. It was made before the Grits came into power in 1873. How that promise was carried out was shown by the fact that the current expenditure of the year when the party left office was $23,503,158, whereas in the last year of the previous administration it was only $19,174,647. Here was an increase of 22 per cent. between 1873 and 1878. The cost of the administration of justice was increased from $398,666 to $577,896; that of civil government from $750,874 to $823,369; legislation was increased $4000; pensions from $49,204 to $105,842; superannuations from $50,026 to $106,588; weights, measures and gas inspection increased from nothing to $96,484; expenditures for Indians from $63,776 to $421,503; arts, agriculture and statistics grew from $10,690 to $92,395. The post office expenditure increased from 1,067,866 to $1,724,928; ocean and river service from $92,742 to $144,837; mounted police, for which there was no appropriation in 1873, cost in 1878 $334,748."

The above extract furnished by our neighbor is a sample of the jugglery indulged in by the "boodle" press to divert attention from the extravagance under Tory rule. The dishonest character of the trick is easily detected. In our issue of December 24th, when dealing with a similar contemptible manipulation of figures from the same source showed that the estimates for 1873-4 were made by Sir Leonard Tilley, and we pointed out that:

It is quite true that the Liberals added $33,000,000 to the public debt during their five years of administration. The exact figures are $32,038,105, an average of $6,500,000 a year, and not $8,000,000 as our contemporary dishonestly states. It must, however, be remembered that $10,000,000 of this was expended on the I. C. R., which was not completed when Mr. Mackenzie came into power in 1873-4. There was also an item of $9,000,000 expended on the C. P. R., a legacy left by Sir John Macdonald's government. Mr. Mackenzie in addition expended $13,267,896 on canals during his five years of office. But this is not all. The estimates for 1873-4 were made by Sir Leonard Tilley, the finance minister under Sir John Macdonald, and the expenditure for the fiscal year was practically fixed by the Conservatives (?) Four months of the fiscal year had elapsed when Sir John was compelled to resign on the Pacific scandal, and seven months of the year had actually expired before Mr. Mackenzie took the helm. A glance at the estimates will show that Sir Leonard Tilley estimated the expenditure for 1873-4 at $21,740,000, an increase over the previous year of $2,500,000, but in his estimates he neglected to make provision for the cost of the C. P. R. and public works surveyed amounting to $2,450,000. He also neglected to provide for the increase of expenditure occasioned by the admission of Prince Edward Island into the union. It will therefore be seen that the government of Sir John Macdonald in the last year of office (1872-3) committed the country to an expenditure of about $24,500,000 in 1873-4 and only made provision for $21,740,000, which Mr. Mackenzie had to face. This was the legacy of debt left the Liberal premier.

This presents the situation in a very different light. And the public accounts for the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1894, which are just to hand, enable us to submit some comparisons which the remarks of our contemporary invite:

COST OF CIVIL GOVERNMENT.

Five years of Liberal rule.		Five years of "Boodle" rule.
1874....	$ 883,685	1890....	$1,308,846
1875....	909,265	1891....	1,334,200
1876....	841,995	1892....	1,325,087

1878....	823,369	1894....	1,402,279
	$4,270,507		$6,737,982
Average	854,101	Average	1,347,596

COST OF COLLECTING CUSTOMS.

Five years of Liberal rule.		Five years of "Boodle" rule.
1874....	$ 658,299	1890....	$ 873,400
1875....	682,673	1891....	900,491
1876....	721,008	1892....	904,809
1877....	721,004	1893....	901,946
1878....	714,526	1894....	921,039
	$3,498,111		$4,503,696
Average	699,622	Average	900,735

COST OF COLLECTING EXCISE.

Five years of Liberal rule.		Five years of "Boodle" rule.
1874....	$ 206,935	1890....	$ 362,896
1875....	199,253	1891....	378,236
1876....	218,359	1892....	400,949
1877....	211,157	1893....	387,673
1878....	215,024	1894....	484,949
	$1,050,728		$2,013,903
Average	210,145	Average	402,780

Recapitulation of averages:—

	Five years of Liberal rule.	Five years of "Boodle" rule.
Cost of civil gov't..	$ 854,101	$1,347,596
Cost of collecting customs	699,622	900,735
Cost of collecting excise	210,145	402,780
	$1,763,869	$2,651,111

These figures show that in these three items alone there has been an increase in the annual expenditure of about $900,000 a year over and above what they cost under Mr. Mackenzie.

In 1874 the cost of civil government was $883,685. Mr. Mackenzie reduced it to $823,369 in 1878-9. It has increased under the "boodle" regime to $1,402,279. The militia in 1874 (Sir Leonard Tilley's estimates) cost $1,122,282. Mr. Mackenzie reduced it to $618,136 in 1878-9. It is now up to $1,284,517. Penitentiaries in 1874 cost $395,551; reduced to $308,101 in 1878-9 by Mr. Mackenzie; now up to $446,134. Collecting customs in 1874 was $727,029; reduced by Mr. Mackenzie to $714,527 in 1878-9; now $921,039. Collecting excise in 1874 cost $206,935; cost $215,024 in 1879-9 and now costs $484,949.

These are only a few of the extravagant features of a regime of incapacity and corruption which has—even after allowing $4,000,000 for the charges of the public debt and sinking funds—increased the yearly expenditures to the lively tune of $9,000,000.

COMMERCIAL BANK.

Creditors Will Receive Fifty Cents on the Dollar.

St. John's, Nfld., Jan. 19.—A statement of the condition of the Commercial Bank was presented to the shareholders yesterday. The statement shows assets worth 48 cents on the dollar and with a second call on shareholders enough will probably be realized to pay all creditors 50 per cent. of their claims, the shareholders, however, sacrificing everything. The bank's assets are $1,460,000, and liabilities $2,111,000. A preferential claim of $416,000 is due the Newfoundland savings bank and must be paid first. The meeting of the shareholders yesterday was a very stormy one and the directors were denounced in strong language. The five directors who composed the board overdrew $1,250,000 and the total overdrafts amounted to a little over two million dollars. Prosecution of the directors of the Union Bank has not been begun but the government has the matter under advisement as public opinion demands. A meeting of the clergy of all denominations was held yesterday to take into consideration means for the relief of those made destitute by the suspension of the bank and other failures. It was decided to issue an appeal. All present regretted that such an appeal was necessary and the urgency of their circumstances has brought them to take the step.

FRENCH POLITICS.

M. Bourgeois Will Endeavor to Form a Cabinet.

Paris, Jan. 18.—It was learned at 10 o'clock this evening that M. Bourgeois, after a two hours' conference with M. Faure, had consented to try and form a cabinet. He will go to the Elysee tomorrow to report the result of his negotiations. It is expected that M. Poincare will return to the ministry of finance and M. Loygues to the ministry of education. Paul Peytral, Louis Terrier and Eugene Godefroy Cavaignac would accept cabinet places under Bourgeois as premier.

Ex-President Casimir-Perier is expected to vacate the Palace Elysee and return to his residence, No. 23 Rue Nitola, to-morrw. The retiring president had a cordial interview to-day with his successor, who will occupy the palace on Tuesday next. The date for the assembling of parliament to hear the new president's message has not yet been fixed. M. Mamotaux, minister of foreign affairs, submitted to M. Faure for his approval to-day a draft of a telegram informing the representatives of France abroad of the election of M. Faure to the presidency.

—The I. O. ... T. lodges of the city will give a concert at Temperance Hall this evening. Combined they are a good sized legion and the talent should be good and the attendance very large.

DEATH OF DANIEL DEASY

Veteran of the Crimean War Passes Away Early This Morning in Victoria.

Came to British Columbia in the Year Fifty-Nine With Royal Engineers.

Daniel Deasy, one of the few remaining veterans of the Crimean war, died this morning at 12.45 at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. E. McDonald, after a long and very painful illness. The deceased was born in Clonkilty, Cork, Ireland, in 1826, and joined the Royal Engineers in 1844. He served in different barracks in England until the Crimean war broke out, when with his company he was sent to the seat of war, serving there the whole campaign. He took an active part in the battles of Sebastopol, Inkerman and Balaclava, also taking part in the blowing up of the docks at Sebastopol. He earned both the British and Turkish medals, of which he was justly proud. Many are the interesting stories he told of the war and the narrow escapes he had. He was known as a man who knew no fear, and no matter what were the orders he carried them out explicitly.

Mr. Deasy came to Victoria in 1859 with the Royal Engineers under Colonel Moody, who were stationed at New Westminster, and remained in the service until they were disbanded. He then entered the service of the colonial government, continuing in his position after confederation, and removing to Victoria when the capital was removed. In 1888 he retired on account of ill health, and was receiving a pension up to the time of his death from the province. He also received a pension from the imperial government.

There was a time when it would have been hard to find a man in British Columbia who did not know Dan Deasy, and still harder to find one who did not respect him. During all the time that he resided here he never once visited the United States.

Two sons, Thomas Deasy, chief of the fire department, and W. J. Deasy, and two daughters, Mrs. E. McDonald and Mrs. James Burns, survive him.

The funeral will take place on Monday afternoon at two o'clock from 126 Douglas street, corner of Chatham, and at 2.30 from the Roman Catholic cathedral.

To-morrow is the anniversary of the day on which the deceased joined the army.

Letter From Bernhard Stavenhagen to Wm. Knabe & Co.

(Translated from the German.)

New York, Jan. 5, 1895.

Dear Sirs: It affords me special pleasure to express to you my great satisfaction with your instruments. The same fully justified the distinguished renown which they enjoy, and I can only concur in the verdict of Messrs. von Bulow and D'Albert, in emphasizing that the Knabe Pianos, before all in regard to mellow and singing (gesangvollen) tone, combined with power, respond to the highest demands. These qualities, united with a perfect mechanism, place "The Knabe Piano" at the head of the best American instruments, and I again beg to express my satisfaction that I have the use of the same for my entire American tour.

With highest esteem,

Yours truly,

BERNARD STAVENHAGEN.

LAW INTELLIGENCE.

Judgment Given in the Appeal Case of Croasdaile v. Hall.

The full court gave judgment this morning in the Croasdaile v. Hall appeal. The action was tried at Nelson before Mr. Justice Crease and judgment entered for the plaintiff for $6700 and costs. From this the defendants appealed and the court reduced the amount to $1350 and costs of trial only. The defendant company, the owner of the Silver King and other mines, passed a resolution authorizing Winslow Hall and John Macdonald to go to England and sell the mine, and also appointed the plaintiff, Mr. Croasdaile, to go and act with Mr. Hall and Mr. Macdonald. As payment to Mr. Croasdaile the resolution provided that he should get $70 from each of the thirteen shareholders and such further sum as Mr. Winslow Hall should consider proper. Mr. Hall failed to name any sum as remuneration, and hence the action. At the trial the sum of $1350 was fixed as the payment for services prior to the resolution and the sum of $4500 as the amount he should be paid, notwithstanding Mr. Hall's refusing to name any sum. The court held that the plaintiff was bound by the resolution and he could not recover anything beyond $1350. The court were unanimous in their opinion that the plaintiff had been unfairly dealt with, Mr. Justice McCreight saying that the defendants were not actuated by any fine scruples and Mr. Justice Walkem referring to the defence as one a scrupulous man would hesitate to take advantage of. Charles Wilson, Q. C., for the appellants and Theodore Davie, Q. C., for the respondent.

The prohibited sealing zone last year was within thirty miles of the Commander Islands and within ten miles of the Kamschatka coast. There is nothing new in this notice, the collector having some weeks ago received similar news from Ottawa.

—A petition to the city council to make a grant towards having the B. C. B. G. A. band play at Beacon Hill park this summer is being circulated through the city this week, and is being signed by all the representative business and professional men. There appears to be a general desire to have music in the park, and there is every probability that the matter will go to the council in the course of the next ten days. Few men who have been shown the petition have failed to attach their signatures to it.

—Another Chinese peddlar armed with one of those short time licenses, was in the police court this morning on a charge of evading the revenue by-law. According to the watch kept by the police the license had expired but the Chinaman held that it had not and the case was dismissed. It is almost useless to do anything as the license business is now carried on. Mayor Teague said this morning that the council would at a very early date try and arrange some new plan for the regulation of the matter.

"The decision of the admiralty," says the London Times of the 27th ultimo, "to send that hopelessly obsolete vessel, the Wild Swan, to the Pacific, to relieve the Champion, is being severely criticised in Service circles. She is positively inferior to the Champion, which is herself a sufficiently grievous specimen of the British navy. The Wild Swan was built of wood, with iron beams, and is a sister ship to the Cormorant, which has been for some years the receiving hulk at Gibraltar. It is really scandalous that the public money should be wasted in refitting and sending to a distant station a ship which is altogether out of date."

—As to the matter of a new cemetery for Victoria, Mayor Teague thinks that it would be a good idea possibly to use the city property at Cedar hill for the purpose. The city owns one hundred acres of land at Cedar hill, acquired many years ago for park purposes. It is argued that it will never be wanted for that and that it will make an excellent cemetery. If it is desirous to do anything with the matter Mayor Teague will very likely suggest that the plan to use the Cedar hill land be gone into and investigated.

No better production than that given by the Calhoun opera company is possible, according to Manager Jamieson, who says their facilities are not surpassed, and who assures us that the enthusiasm with which they will be received on Monday evening will be such as to necessitate the "standing room only" sign for the balance of the engagement.

BURNS' ANNIVERSARY.

The Usual Concert in the First Presbyterian Church.

Whatever differences Scotsmen may have in regard to their famous countrymen, they are all of one mind in calling Robbie Burns the greatest poet their country has produced. His songs can touch the hearts of the lowliest Scot, and the highest in the land is just as susceptible. No matter where the sons and daughters of Bonnie Scotland may be, in the heart of Africa, in the wilds of Australia, or in our own Canada, when the 25th of January comes round they will be gathered in some way to keep green the memory of Scotland's national bard. The celebration takes the form of balls, banquets, conversazones and concerts, according to different tastes and opportunities. In Victoria for the last seven years the anniversary of the "Immortal Robbie" has been celebrated by a Scotch concert, under the auspices of the First Presbyterian church, directed by that popular Scotsman, Mr. J. G. Brown. This year the same organization have decided to give another of their excellent entertainments, which are enjoyed alike by Scotch and English for the excellence of the musical rendering as well as for the broad dialect. The choir of the church will give some very fine part songs, which are being prepared under Mr. Brown's careful training, and among those who will assist are the following well known ladies and gentlemen: Mrs. McCandless, Mrs. Watson, Miss Russell, Miss Brown (violinist), Miss Wilson, Miss Milne, Miss Baker, Mr. W. Allan, Mr. W. D. Kinnaird, Mr. G. F. Watson and Mr. J. G. Brown. The programme will be a lengthy one, with varied but choice selections, and coupled with popular prices in these hard times should fill the hall on the 23rd inst. to overflowing.

During January

SPECIAL INDUCEMENTS will be offered to customers by GEO. L. SIMPSON. Sewing Machines, Crockery Glassware, Tinware, Graniteware, all at greatly reduced prices. By order of the Assignee.

—Ald. William Humphrey has bulletined notice of motion to authorize the city to borrow the sum of $120,000 in anticipation of the revenue of 1895. The motion is simply a formal one being necessary to give the treasury authority to make arrangements at the bank for money until taxes are available. A similar motion is passed annually at this time.

—Coughlan & Mayo have completed work on sewer contracts Nos. 1 and 2, which took in Government, Yates, Douglas, Fort, View and Broad streets, practically a square area. The tool house on Broad street at the corner of Trounce avenue has been removed and Government street is being cleaned up. The latter thoroughfare will now be clear only for a few months, as the water main has to be extended along it, and the gas main will very likely have to be taken up and a larger one put down.

—Mayor Teague and the members of the new city council were sworn in this morning. The ceremony took place in the supreme court room before Justice McCreight, who administered the oath of office. There were few people present. Justice McCreight handed over the seal of the corporation to Mayor Teague after induction into office, and the ceremony was at an end. The new council will hold their first sitting on Monday night. No business will be done other than the appointing of standing committees by the mayor.

No Doubt About It

A Mimico, Ont, Man Speaks From Experience.

HIS SUFFERINGS MISERY AND AGONIES ARE BANISHED.

He Says: "Paine's Celery Compound Has Made Me a New Man."

The strong testimony of men and women who have endured sufferings and agonies from disease for months and years is always the means of saving and rescuing the lives of others who suffer, and who have not found the true means of escape from death.

Mr. Wm. Wilson, of Mimico, Ont., desires to point every sufferer to that true life giver, Paine's Celery Compound, the only medicine that can truly banish disease and suffering and give a new and happy life. He writes as follows:

"When heaven sends into the world an agency for banishing suffering, misery and disease, I think every afflicted human being should know of it.

"I thank God that in my time of pain and suffering my attention was directed to Paine's Celery Compound. For months I was in such a condition that I could not work. My trouble was pain between the shoulders and general weakness of body. I went to several doctors, but their medicines were used in vain.

"I continued in suffering and agony until I was recommended Paine's Celery Compound. The first two bottles I used worked wonderfully in relieving my pain. I gained strength, and had an assurance of brighter days.

"I have continued with the marvellous medicine until the time of writing, and feel myself a new man. I can positively affirm that Paine's Celery Compound has been the means of saving me from being crippled in body. It is a medicine that I can honestly recommend to every sufferer, and I can never forget what it has done for me."

NEEDS NO PROTECTION.

England's Royal Family Moves About Without Guards.

The news that little Prince Edward of York numbered a detective and constable among his suite of attendants savored of the ridiculous to those who knew with what absolute freedom and safety the children and grandchildren of the Queen move about their own country, says a writer in St. Paul's.

The Queen herself drives from end to end of her various estates with no more protection than can be afforded by a middle aged Scotch gillie. The Prince of Wales, his brothers and his son, perambulate clubland and the west end in exactly the same manner as do the most ordinary of Englishmen. Indeed, the Prince of Wales is scarcely ever attended by an equerry except when he rides in the Row. The Princess and her daughters drive all over London entirely unaccompanied, save when in the height of the season a mounted policeman clears the road for them through the park. The Duke of York takes an early morning stroll in Green park, invariably alone, while all the royal princesses walk down Bond street, shop or drive in hansoms without any one either protecting or molesting them.

Apropos of police protection for royalty, the Prince of Wales has a funny story against himself. He was in Paris, and was strolling alone as usual one fine morning down the boulevards. Stopping to chat with a friend, he commented with considerable glee on the fact that he was able to go about Paris quite at his ease and untrammeled by guards, police or ceremonies of any kind, and that, in fact, nobody knew him. The Prince was immensely amused afterwards to learn that the French government is not so careless as might be supposed, and that a large staff of espions in plain clothes watched the Prince from morning till night, and that on the very day he made the boast to his friend at least a score of police were "shadowing" him at but a few yards' distance.

REPORTING BY TELEPHONE.

The Hello Instrument Largely Used by British Newspapers.

It would surprise many people to learn how little the telephone is used by the great London daily newspapers. In the provinces and on the continent the case is far different, and when time saving has been of the first consideration, the telephone has often beaten the telegraph wire. Thus, during a famous trial at Edinburgh, when the Glasgow papers were daily giving very full reports of the proceedings, one evening journal by using the telephone, was enabled to issue its editions in advance of its rivals, which were depending on the wire, and when at the close of the case the verdict was dispatched to London, it was the telephone again which had the advantage. A similar plan of dispensing with written "copy" or manuscript, was in operation between the reporter's gallery in the house of commons and the Times' office in Printing House Square for some time. It is now discontinued. As the reporters left the "box" in the house of commons they repaired at once to the cabin in which the telephonist sat, and dictated to him their notes. He spoke the matter through the wire and the compositor, seated before a machine, immediately put it into type. Every night at the general postoffice in St. Martin's-le-Grand, a large amount of news is verbally received from and transmitted to Paris. The experience is rather trying to the novice. It is easy enough to take down in shorthand from the telephone paragraphs which are fairly long, and the rate of progression may amount to 120 words per minute, but should the paragraph contain many names of persons or places the speed will fall to 40, and sometimes not more than 5 or 10 words per minute can be got through. Whenever there is any doubt as to the name of any person or place the clerk will spell it in full, and it is usual to adopt the Greek alphabet—alpha, beta, etc.,—because these letters contain more than one syllable, and can therefore be more easily recognized, especially when the wind is blowing. Between Brussels and Paris also much news correspondence is sent over the telephone; but apart from the service at the general postoffice, which is used by news agencies, the London papers rely on the telegraph printing instrument rather than the telephone.—Cassell's Saturday Journal.

HE WAS BURIED ALIVE

Sensations of a Man Who Felt the Earth Closing Upon Him.

W. K. Moorehead, a geologist, was recently buried alive while excavating a mound of the mound-builders in Ohio. He fell with his head resting a little above his feet, and suffered little beyond a sensation of strong compression due to the weight of the earth, which pressed the buttons of his light costume into the skin and caused his watch chain to mark his body.

His thoughts succeeded each other like flashes of lightning, and related to the past, the future and his home. He did not think of his condition, except to wonder if he would be able to breathe when he was taken out of it. He tried to move his hands, even his fingers, but failed. He could not lift his chest, and the only part of his body he could move was his lower jaw, which the clods permitted to be done. He remembered how warm the earth before his face had become when the breath was pressed from his lungs.

He kept his mouth shut to exclude the earth, but after a time it opened in spite of him, and two pieces of clay entered and caused him a horrible sensation in trying to eject them. He felt that he was lost and became indifferent. The workmen who were digging him out cleared the earth from his face and eyes but when they stopped a little the pressure on the rest of his body drove the blood to his head and swelled the veins so that he was afraid they would burst. Moreover, he could not breathe yet, because the thorax was still compressed by the soil.

He never lost consciousness, and as the men carried him away he saw a little wild yellow canary sitting on a spray and heard it sing. As the bird flew off he fancied that he was flying after it and perching on one twig or another, just as it did. The sky seemed of a different color than usual, it also seemed grander, and the country more beautiful, and he was so much affected by the wondrous beauty of the spectacle as to shed tears.—Science Siftings.

MME. EMMA EAMES.

The Great Soprano.

Very beautiful are the features of Mdme. Emma Eames, the great singer, whose art has delighted many thousands. Her presence is gracious, her intellectuality unquestioned and her voice a perfect delight. Praise from one so celebrated, then, has a high value, and this is what Mdme. Emma Eames says of "Vin Mariani," the famous tonic wine:—"Vin Mariani" is a most delightful and efficacious tonic, of inestimable value." All public characters, doing a great deal of brain work, feel the beneficial effects of this tonic stimulant, which is a great nourisher of the brain, imparting at the same time to the body, debilitated or depressed, new vigor, so that it has been well called by Zola, the elixir of life. "Vin Mariani" is more tonic than iron or quinine, and does not produce constipation. Send your address to Lawrence A. Wilson & Co., Montreal, the Canadian Agents, and you will receive an album, containing the portraits of a large number of celebrities, who have spoken enthusiastically of this notable stimulant, prepared from pure grapes and coca leaves.

Central Asian potentates are growing very European in their ways. Since the Emir of Bokhara visited St. Petersburg he has quite adopted western habits, throwing open his palace to Russian ladies and giving regular balls. After the European comforts he finds his palace very bare, so he has invited a French architect to build another in European style.

NEW SEALING REGULATIONS

They Will Not Differ Materially From Those Issued Last Season.

Secretary Hamlin Will Make the Usual American Report.

Washington, Jan. 18.—The secretary of the treasury has about completed his regulations for the government of vessels employed in fur seal fishing during the coming season. These regulations, it is said, will not materially differ from those in operation during the last season. Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British ambassador, had a conference with Mr. Carlisle, and it is thought that in essential particulars the regulations to be issued by the British government will not materially differ from our own.

Another matter of far greater importance to the sealing industry is now under consideration. Assistant Secretary Hamlin last summer visited the Pribyloff islands and investigated the whole sealing question, and has now almost completed his report to the secretary on the subject. The report has not been made public, but it will show that the greet menace to life of the seal is pelagic sealing, and not the number permitted to be taken on the islands. It will also show that the action of the Paris tribunal has been proven to have fallen short of preventing the wanton slaughter of seal life, which may soon result in the total destruction of the herds since seals may be freely killed sixty miles from shore. At these are mostly females, the increase of the herds is prevented. Another provision of the Paris award, which is said to have been abortive is that no firearms shall be used within the sixty-mile zone. The most successful natives, it is stated, never use firearms, the spear or harpoon being far more effective and in general use.

In view of these facts, it is believed steps are about to be taken to secure England's consent to a modification of the Paris award, having for its object the total suspension for a specified number of years of pelagic sealing within Behring Sea. No measure less heroic than this, it is stated, can prevent the ultimate extinction of seal life in these northern waters.

NEW SUPERINTENDENT.

Appointment of Dr. Boddington as Superintendent of the Insane Asylum.

Papers respecting the appointment of Dr. G. F. Boddington as medical superintendent of the asylum for the insane were laid before the legislature yesterday. The papers include Dr. Boddington's application for the position, his recommendations and the provincial secretary's reply stating that the doctor was to take charge on February 1st. The testimonials are signed by numerous eminent physicians in Great Britain, and go to show that he has had much experience in the treatment of the insane. He is an M. D. (Durham), M. D. (Giessen), Fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons of England; member of the Royal College of Physicians of London; formerly surgeon to the North Riding Infirmary, Middlesbrough, and House Surgeon to the Queen's Hospital, Birmingham; president (1876-77) of the Birmingham and Midland Counties branch of the British Medical Association; president (1877-78) of the Birmingham Medical Institute, and president (1883-84) of the Midland Medical Society, England.

The other applicants for the position were: Dr. Boggs, New Westminster; Dr. De Wolf Smith, New Westminster, and Dr. Wade, Victoria.

LANDLORD AND TENANT.

Legislation to Do Away With the Present One-Sided Conditions.

Mr. Helmcken yesterday introduced a bill respecting the law of landlord and tenant. The bill follows:

Whereas serious grievances to creditors arise by reason of landlords allowing the payment of rent by tenants to fall into arrear, whereby a fictitious credit is given to tenants:

Therefore, Her Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the legislative assembly of the province of British Columbia, enacts as follows:

1. This act may be cited as the "Landlord and Tenant Act, 1895."

2. In all cases where the relation of landlord and tenant exists the lien of the landlord shall be preferred to all claims of whatsoever nature, to the extent and no further than to enable the landlord to collect the payment of the rent due in respect of any premises let or demised by him three months after the same shall have become due and payable.

3. In all other cases the claim of the landlord shall be of the same nature as that of a simple creditor.

4. This act shall not come into force until after the expiration of three months from the date of its passage.

Ringing Noises

In the ears, sometimes a roaring, buzzing sound, are caused by catarrh, that exceedingly disagreeable and very common disease. Loss of smell or hearing also result from catarrh. Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier, is a peculiarly successful remedy for this disease, which it cures by purifying the blood.

HOOD'S PILLS are the best after dinner pills; assist digestion, prevent constipation.

LET THEM JUMP.

The Muscular Excitement of Children Should not be Restrained.

The movements and habits of a young baby seem so strange to us because they are so different from those made by adults, and because they flare so unconsciously performed. Joy is expressed by muscular movements, by wriggling of the hands and toes, or by convulsive beatings of the arms, when it is small; by "jigging," when it is larger. These movements are expressive of joy because to any animal of highly-developed muscular energy, movement is absolutely essential, and particularly pleasing, while stillness is the reverse. It is muscular excitement, chiefly no doubt electrical, a heritage from ancestors who knew not what it was to be still, that gives that restlessness to children and causes them to find so much pleasure in mere motion and muscular exertion of any kind.

Jumping for joy is very literally correct of a child's expression of pleasure. The prospect of a sweet will excite a series of leaps to indicate delight, and they further serve the purpose of relieving the tedium of waiting the half-second necessary to the donation. The pleasure of finding a bird's nest with an egg in it—a pleasure which must have been very real sometimes in the case of hungry monkeys and savage man, but is now only a survival of the instinct thus formed—this pleasure a boy expressed by a series of convulsive leaps in the air, and during the performance not only were the arms and legs moved as much as posible, but the muscles of the stomach and the vocal organs had to be utilized to cause accompanying shouts.

It may be remarked that in adults, when limb movements are less active, shouts are, on account of the muscular action involved, a necessary accompaniment of joy, noticeable in 'Arry on a bank holiday; while in some cases expletives are symptomatic of joy and not of anger. All these outward signs have had their origin in that nerve-excitation inducing muscular action which is a heritage from ancestors who, impelled by hunger, by love, or by war, led more active lives and thereby obtained a desire for motion as a second nature.

Children and young lambs are a very familiar example; and so strongly will the latter pursue their gambols and racings that a broken heart is sometimes a cause of death in the middle of a sudden gallop. If children have to be still it is torture to them—positive torture in some cases—and grown up people are unaware how much, or they would not thoughtfully inflict it on young children. It is similar with atheletes; their muscular excitement is so strong that movement is pleasure, stillness means pain, and they are noted for restlessness.—The Nineteenth Century.

PROVISIONING PARIS.

What the Government Has Done to Prepare for a Siege.

A generation ago the art of preserving provisions was in its infancy, and the art of preserving them by means of cold storage was almost unknown. The French government has taken full advantage of the improvements that has been made in the interval. The military magazines are now always filled, and they are of vast extent. But at the approach of war innumerable warehouses and other buildings, which have been long since told off for the purpose, would be requisitioned and also filled. And the storage of provisions takes up a good deal less room that, probably, most people imagine.

For example, no fewer than 4000 rations of preserved vegetables can be put in a cubic space measuring only 40 inches each way. Millions of these rations and of rations of solid soups and preserved meats, are always ready in Paris. The preserved meats, by the way, come from a factory which was specially founded in New Caledonia to meet the demands of the war department. The supplies of flour and of biscuits are fabulous. During the last siege milk was worth more than its weight in gold, and thousands of the very old and very young died for the lack of it, while, when it could be obtained, it was generally of the worst quality. But in the next siege milk will be not only comparatively plentiful, but also extremely good. Dr. Autelge's process of "pasteurizing" milk has been adopted by the government, and the milk thus treated, and stored in hermetically sealed tins, remains absolutely pure and unaltered almost indefinitely.

The introduction of compressed fodder and of the silo system has facilitated the storage of sufficient food for the horses of the troops, as well as of the omnibusses, tramcars, sanitary service, etc., and it is difficult to believe that any future siege can last long enough to exhaust the huge accumulations that are permanently kept in readiness by renewal from time to time. Nor has the provision of coal and wood, charcoal, mineral oil, chemicals, and a thousand other things, been overlooked. Then there are the spacious dry cold storage warehouses at La Vilette.

At the first sign of danger, hundreds of thousands of sheep and oxen would be brought into Paris and slaughtered, and their carcasses would be stored there, where, by means of the Fixary process, they can be kept sweet and fresh for many months. Paris, it is certain, will not be easily starved, and so long as she is in no danger of starving, she will run little risk of suffering from one of the worst of the ordinary consequences of a great siege—an epidemic.

NATIONAL WEALTH.

A Comparison of United States and European Riches.

While the census returns and statistical reports show that the United States is the wealthiest of all nations, that it has a total wealth of approximately $63,000,000,000 against $50,000,000,000 for Great Britain and $40,000,000,000 for France, and a total annual income of over $8,000,000,000 as against $6,000,000,000 for Great Britain and $4,000,000,000 for France, yet when the greater extent of our country is taken into account, combined with the much larger number of population, it can hardly be said that this showing is one specially creditable to us.

It is true that our country is a new one; that a part of its area has been but recently settled, and that in no part of it had we an opportunity for many centuries to lay up wealth; but when account is taken that the United States is a country containing greater natural opportunities and natural resources than any country under the sun; that it is inhabited by an exceptionally enterprising and industrious people; that the two countries of the old world referred to, France and Great Britain, have labored under many government and traditional disabilities that do not exist here; that their resources were largely exploited and used up before ours were touched, and, furthermore, that the wealth of these two old countries is, to a large extent the product of the last two generations—when all these things are taken into acount, it cannot be said that our showing is greatly to our credit.

As it is, the per capita wealth of Great Britain is set at $1,335, and that of France at $1,081, against $1,010 for the United States, while the average income per family is put in Great Britain at $800, in France at $585, and in the United States at $675. As we said above, there is nothing in this showing to cause any intense amount of patriotic satisfaction in the minds of American citizens. We have heard so much about the effete countries of the old world, the paupertized condition of the people, the army-ridden, overtaxed, degraded condition of their inhabitants, that to have a carefully prepared statistical statement show that these assertions are plausible lies and that, on the whole, these countries are wealthier, and, in certain ways, more prosperous than our own, is not a consoling and gratifying piece of intelligence.

It may be said that this average counts for but little, because it merely indicates that a few people are enormously wealthy and that the great mass of the people are desperately poor. But unfortunately for such an assumption, it is generally admitted that there is no country in the world where wealth has aggregated itself in larger masses and in fewer hands than in the United States. The Rockfellers, Havemeyers, Goulds, Vanderbilts, Astors, and a score or two more of magnates of this class have absorbed and possess double the amount of national wealth that can be found in any similar class in any other country in the world, and, what is more, while the fortunes of the exceedingly wealthy men of France and England represent the accumulations of generations, these American aggregations of money represent to a large degree the share that their possessors have taken of our national production within the last thirty or forty years.

While it is possible that on the whole the average income of the wage earner in the United States is larger than the average income of the wage earner in France and Great Britain—though this, bear in mind, does not represent the purchasing power of this income—we are inclined to believe that there are in those countries, both relatively and actually, a much larger class than in the United States of what would be called well-to-do people, that is, persons having incomes ranging all the way from $5,000 to $25,000 a year. In other words, the tendency of our methods, that is, the favors granted to corporations and intriguing individuals by legislative bodies, and especially our tariff system—has been toward the extinction of what is termed the "middle class in England and the "bourgeois class" in France, and in their place the substitution of a few men of prodigious wealth on one side and a tremendous army of mere wage-earners on the other.

We say our methods have tended in that direction, although in the relatively few years of the last half of the present century, during which period these influences have been distinctly brought into play, time has not been afforded for the extinction of our middle class. It simply has not grown and prospered as similar classes grew and prospered in the two European countries to which we have referred. This seems to be the conclusion toward which the estimates of wealth given above unquestionably point.—Boston Herald.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

DISAPPEARANCE OF PLANTA

He Fails to Attend Enquiry Yesterday and a Search is Instituted for Him.

Probability That a Royal Commission Will Look Into Nanaimo Civic Affairs.

Nanaimo, Jan. 19.—The Planta inquiry case has assumed a sensational aspect. Yesterday morning opened by the examination of Chief Stewart's cash book, which showed the following entries:

1892—January $15, February $33, March $23.50, April $27, May $51, June $34, July $27.50, August $29, September $44, October $41.50, November $29, December $23; 1893 the sums were: $20, $21, $24.50, $17.50, $66.50, $21.50, $15, $68, $22, $38, $15.50, $29; 1894 the sums were $16, $12, $11.50, $7.50, $7, $12.50, $18, $4.50, $7. The amounts paid to the additional justices were as follows for 1892: M. Bate, $70; J. Hilbert, $41.50; for 1893, M. Bate, $108 and J. Hilbert $1, for 1894, M. Bate, $29.

To Mr. Planta, Chief Stewart said he had paid these amounts in accordance with what he understood to be the regulations and had done so regularly during the past 18 years. Neither Mr. Bate nor Mr. Planta had spoken to him on the matter. At the beginning of the year 1894 Mr. Planta had told him that as he was then police magistrate he could not accept fees in city cases, and that all moneys must be handed over to the city clerk.

Ex-Chief of Police McKinnon on being examined gave evidence to the effect that no records pertaining to his duty were ever kept.

Mr. E. V. Bodwell next went into the charge of dereliction of duty and the number of cases amounted to thirty-one, all of which fines could not be accounted for.

Mr. S. Gough was again called and his private diary, bank book and city bank book had to be produced. On going through those books there were many entries which the city clerk failed to explain to the commissioner. Mr. Gough objected to his private books being used in the examination and finally they were sealed up and retained by the court.

The sensation of the day came when Mr. J. P. Planta's non appearance was noticed. All through the inquiry Mr. Planta has appeared voluntarily but at this stage it became absolutely necessary that he should be present. Constables were sent in search of him but failed to find any trace of him. Inquiry at his home elicited the fact that he had not been home to luncheon and further search failed to locate his whereabouts. Judge Harrison could not understand his absence, and remarked: "If Mr. Planta had business matters to attend to it would have been a simple matter to have informed the court and an adjournment would have been taken. He further stated as he had made no arrangements to absent himself he would be compelled to issue a warrant for his arrest and in the meantime an adjournment would be taken until seven o'clock in the evening. The news of this state of affairs quickly spread throughout the city, and when the court opened in the evening, it was crowded by those anxious to hear the latest developments, but none came, neither did Mr. Planta put in an appearance. Judge Harrison then adjourned the commission until 11 o'clock to-day. Mr. Bodwell left for Victoria this morning and will not return until Tuesday next. A freight train left here at two o'clock yesterday and it is probable Mr. Planta left on that. On the other hand, his mysterious disappearance leads some to believe that it is possible he may have committed some rash act. It is possible that a royal commission may be issued to inquire into all the transactions of the city council books.

Nanaimo, Jan. 19.—Nothing further has developed concerning the mysterious disappearance of Magistrate Planta. There is now every reason to believe that he has skipped out. Three cheques were presented at the bank this morning signed by J. P. Planta, and payment was refused, so it is supposed he has withdrawn his account and has skipped out by a tug which left the harbor about 2.30 yesterday. A theory is advanced by the legal profession to the effect that in all probability he is preparing a statement of the affairs of the Blakeway estate, which the commissioner refused to allow him, as requested, until Monday to accomplish. His family appear to know nothing as to his whereabouts. The ever-forgiving public of Nanaimo express great sympathy for the old gentleman.

Mr. E. V. Bodwell, who is conducting the Planta inquiry for the government, came down on the noon train. Up to the time he left nothing had been heard of the missing magistrate, although every effort was being made to locate him. Mr. Bodwell says there are as many theories as to his whereabouts as there are men in Nanaimo. He does not seem to think, as some do, that Planta has made away with himself, but rather that he has got out of the way. He was present at yesterday morning's session of the inquiry, but did not return after lunch, and has not been seen since. There appeared to be nothing wrong with him in the morning, and the evidence adduced was not such as might frighten him, but was the same as has been given during the last few days.

Mr. Bodwell did not know anything about the report that a royal commission was to be appointed to inquire into Nanaimo's civic affairs.

THE SEALING FLEET.

Sale of the Schooner Arietas—American Schooner Iadetta Here.

The American schooner Iadetta, recently purchased by Captain Hughes, has been brought here from Seattle and a crew is being shipped for her at the American consulate. She will cruise in Japanese waters, leaving in a few days for Yokohama. The schooner is a trim looking craft and should be a good sailer. Captain Hughes good naturedly boasts that he is going to beat the Geneva, which left here on January 2 for Yokohama.

The schooner Arietas has been sold by Robert Ward and Company to Simon Leiser and William Munsie, and by them chartered to a syndicate of hunters headed by Oscar Scarff. The latter will have command of her. The financial consideration in the sale is not stated.

It is very improbable that the schooners Penelope and Venture, of the Urquhart estate, will go out this season.

The schooner Vera, Captain Shields, sailed this morning for Japan. The tug Velos towed her out off the Pedro, and she got a fair wind. She will hunt with five boats and there are 20 in her crew all told. The schooner Louis Olsen is about ready to sail. She is in charge of Captain Guilliams, brother of the former owner of the vessel who died here two months ago. The brother has chartered her from the estate.

On account of going under new letters patent necessitated by taking in the 2 1-2 mile belt, Langley municipality elected it's councillors, six in number at large, this year, but will revert to ward divisions hereafter.

—Triumph lodge, No. 16, I. O. G. T., held their weekly meeting in Blue Ribbon hall, Esquimalt, on Thursday evening. There were two more initiations, going to show how earnestly the members are working to forward the cause. There was given a good programme of vocal and instrumental music, which was heartily enjoyed.

—The two hundred ton concentrator and two roasting furnaces of the big smelting plant at Pilot Bay are in operation, and two more of the roasting furnaces are ready for use. The ore being used is all from the Bluebell mine, where an additional strike of considerable importance has just been made. The latter is a six-foot vein of copper, and it is believed that it will greatly increase the value of the property.

COACHING IN ENGLAND.

Revival of the Custom of the Gallant and Good Old Days.

The "Old Coaching Days" are slowly but surely returning. Many a village which ten or twenty years ago was sunk in a silence as of death is now daily enlivened by the gallant spectacle of a coach in four, and the cheery greeting of the guard's horn. It may be a parodox but the steam engine has done it. It is the big well-to-do middle class—the product of the modern industrial and commercial system—that has summoned the stage coach from its long repose. As a means of locomotion merely, the railway train killed the coach; just as, as a means of shelter, the house killed the tent. The victory in each case was decisive; but here, as elsewhere, the vanquished rival, after a long seclusion, returns to the attack in a new guise and from a new quarter. The tent, it begins to be seen at a summer abode has charms which cannot live in the vicinity of brick and mortar; and similarly the top of a coach on a summer morning has joys which you assuredly will look for in vain in a third class compartment. Romance, it is true, is beginning timidly to hover round the great express engine, and minor poets in these latter days have been known to sing of

"The leviathan afar
With thund'rous echoes, ringing rods of steel and force devouring space."

And one audacious humorist has affirmed that the most piquant way of seeing a countryside is from the window of a fast train. But the steady-going majority distrust these acrobatic wits, and find themselves more in accord with Mr. Ruskin's characteristic saying: "The whole system of railroad travelling," he declares, "is addressed to people who, being in a hurry, are therefore for the time being miserable. No one would travel in that manner who could help it, who had time to go leisurely over hill and between hedges, instead of through tunnels and between banks." The railway for business and the coach for pleasure. A few years hence the summer tour of the public coach will be a recognized and delightful form of holiday. The publication of the Road Journal in 1891, the Coaching Exhibition at the Royal Aquarium this year, the recent issue of the Road Coach Guide—a Bradshaw of the highway—are all signs that the long period of deadness is drawing to a close. The coaching renaissance is upon us.

It will probably surprise many people to learn that there are altogether at the present time between thirty and forty coaches in brisk work in English districts, many of them running daily.—Westminster Gazette.
